Music lovers get rare opportunity

Looking like the model for the Heisman trophy, Judd Carns gained a lot of yardage playing in both the JV and varsity games of the Midget Football League. Carns played in the JV contest on Saturday and the varsity game on Sunday where he picked up 38 yards. The Midget Football League is into its 2001 season full swing. Boyertown Gold Midgets defeated Kutztown, 24-6.

Ashley Ettinger (29) drives the ball between Exeter players moving the ball downfield. The Eagles and Bears locked up in a game that was decided by one point. Exeter won the contest, 1-0. It was a tough week for the Boyertown squad, who lost a second game to Governor Mifflin by the identical score. Boyertown then played Hamburg in an interdivisional game and tied them 0-0 after an overtime period.

The Reading Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Maestro Sydney Rothstein, invites music lovers to go behind the scenes Oct. 6, and see how a symphony concert is constructed.

Through the "Music in the Making" community outreach program, music lovers of all ages and backgrounds can attend an informative presentation and a final concert rehearsal.

The "Music in the Making" program, developed by the RSO's diversity committee, is a unique way to learn more about the inner workings of the symphony and the music it performs.

Participation is free, and those attending are invited to dress informally.

"Music in the Making" begins at 1:15 p.m. on the symphony's evening subscription concerts. The presentation, held at the Sovereign Performing Arts Center (formerly the Rajah Theatre), 136 North Sixth Street, Reading, opens with a member of the Reading Symphony Orchestra offering a demonstration and discussion of the importance of his/her instrument in music.

At 2:15 p.m. participants then enter the theater for the symphony's final rehearsal of the evening's performance.

They may stay for the entire program or leave the rehearsal at the intermission which occurs about 3:45 p.m.
